Will be overbet once again based on his consistent rallying ability but still it is hard to overlook that distinct streak of seconditis; different pace scenario may be in the wings today and betting value certainly lies elsewhere; note his only victory was accomplished over a sloppy track.

Truly amazing rally last month when closing with a rush for the score; sired by Skip Away, one of the top earners in thoroughbred racing history; still will have to improve significantly in order to be among the major players today.

Made a nice middle move in that January attempt when reaching the lead in the stretch only to fade from view; trainer has won with longshots who fit the same layoff profile; not out of the question if the midpack rally is timed perfectly.
